Mighty Saturn Rocket Poised For Launching

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—A countdown resumed late Monday for the launch of an 18-story Saturn rocket that is expected to put on a fiery show in the darkened heavens when it streaks aloft with a giant, bat-like satellite early Tuesday.

The eight engines on the awesome space booster, most of which are scheduled to roar into life at 3:30 a.m. EDT although engineers could wait until after daybreak if necessary.

The Pegasus meteoroid detection satellite it will carry is designed to orbit the earth and count the bits of space debris it encounters.

While engineers readied the 188-foot Saturn for launch, other technicians prepared a three-stage Delta rocket for an attempt Friday to shoot a radiation measuring moonlet into a far-orbit earth orbit.

At the same time, astronauts James McDivitt and Edward White prepared for the nation's most ambitious manned space flight to date, a four-day voyage now set to start June 3. The Gemini-4 space pilots are scheduled to circle the globe 62 times.

McDivitt and White spent much of Monday at pad 19 where their Titan-2 rocket and capsule are undergoing tests. Tuesday, the astronauts will undergo 40-minute physical examinations.

The federal space agency reported that weather for the early morning Saturn launch was good although scattered clouds over Florida's east coast may block portions of the booster's fiery climb into the sky for some observers.

If weather permits, the long trail of exhaust flame expelled by the rocket's eight first-stage engines is expected to be visible for miles up and down the coast.

Bolivia's Tin Miners Resist Army Control

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Eight persons died Monday in heavy fighting between government troops and rebellious workers in the industrial suburbs of La Paz and the turbulent tin mining areas south of the capital.

Machine guns and automatic weapons clattered into the night in the hills surrounding the capital. Snipers battled police on the eighth day of a violence-marked general strike called to protest the expulsion of the head of the leftist tin miners' union.

Sixty-eight persons were wounded.

At Least 19 Killed

At least 19 persons have been killed in clashes between armed workers and forces of Bolivia's ruling military junta. A drive by the army to seize the tin mines at the junta's order has heightened tensions.

Air force planes strafed hill-tops around La Paz in the morning to flush out the snipers. They ominously buzzed the city later in the day while sporadic shooting took place on the ground.

In the mining interior, many casualties were reported as the miners tried to resist military occupation of the mines.

Lt. Gen. Rene Barrientos, junta president, emerged grimly from the National Palace saying, "This is unfortunately no longer a general strike or state of subversion but a state of civil war, which is what the extremist leaders wanted."

Truce Appeal Spurned

He rejected a miners' appeal for a 48-hour truce. "We have exhausted our means of persuasion," he said. "The labor union leaders will just have to come out of their stronghold."

The junta underscored its determination to crush the revolt by two decrees affecting workers in the state-owned tin mines, where the unions have traditionally had a strong say in their operation.

One reduces the wages of all mine employees; the other dismisses 27,000 workers from the state mining corporation (Comibol) payroll, leaving the decision to rehire as many as necessary with mining authorities.

Tennessee Mine Blast Traps Five

ROBBINS, Tenn. (AP) — Five miners were trapped 3,000 feet underground by an explosion at the C. L. Kline coal mine near this east Tennessee town Monday.

Fred Foster, Scott County deputy sheriff, said the accident was discovered when other miners reported for work on the night shift at 4:15 p.m.

Sheriff Jack Laxton was at the scene directing rescue operations.

Tennessee highway patrol officers and five ambulances were at the spot. Officers estimated it would be at least six to eight hours before rescue workers could reach the mine chamber where the five are trapped.

"The sheriff says the men think they are within five or six hundred feet of the miners," said Charles Welch, a telephone company official at the scene. He made his report about four hours after the trouble was discovered.

"The men going into the mine say they are finding more rock-falls and more debris as they work their way back into the mine," Welch said.

Soviet Astronomers Say Moon Is Brown

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet astronomers claimed Monday that the moon isn't the color of green cheese and it isn't even yellow. The Tass news agency reported that scientists at the Kazakhstan Observatory find the moon's surface is a "predominantly brownish tinge." They added that the surface seems to be covered with rocks.

BACK TO CELL—Jack Ruby, convicted slayer of presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, passes a remark to newsmen outside the courtroom in Dallas, Tex., as he returns to his jail cell after a recess in a hearing yesterday. Ruby Admits He Took 'Pep' Pills Day Of Shooting

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Jack Ruby, who killed President Kennedy's assassin, declared Monday that he had taken numerous pills — "they stimulate you" — shortly before he gunned down Lee Harvey Oswald.

He made the admission — the first such revelation — at a court hearing during which his veteran counsel, Joe Tonahill, was removed from Ruby's forthcoming sanity hearing.

Judge Louis T. Holland of Montague, Tex., ruled that Tonahill should be removed as Ruby's counsel for the sanity hearing.

After that, said the visiting judge, the question of Ruby's representation will be decided by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

Judge Holland indicated that Ruby's sanity hearing would probably be set for sometime in July. He also said at the close of Monday's proceedings that a hearing on whether Judge Joe B. Brown should be disqualified in the case would be set later. Brown presided at the Ruby murder trial.

But the sensation of the trial was Ruby's fresh testimony that he took pills which "make you want to do positive things" before gunning Oswald to death, and that he fears there will be an attempt in future years to link him as a conspirator with Oswald against President Kennedy's life.

"To the American people and the world I'm going to be branded a part of a conspiracy with Oswald," he declared in an emotional courtroom scene.

"You're going to forget how I felt about the beloved President Kennedy. There has been so much torment, so much hardship," he said.

The Warren Commission sought for months to determine if a conspiracy existed between Ruby and Oswald but found none.

Ruby, in his sometimes rambling discourse, appeared to have given up hope of escaping the electric chair.

Natural Beauty Council Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson opened a 2-day White House conference on natural beauty Monday on the note that every man, woman and child can help in the attack on civic ugliness.

The First Lady, who has been a leader in President Johnson's program to beautify America, sat in on some of the day-long panels at which nearly 1,000 experts are trying to come up with recommendations for the President.

A major proposal was that Johnson establish a National Council on Natural Beauty, with a citizens advisory committee and a full-time staff to centralize the government's efforts in this field.

There were suggestions that big cities appoint urban design planners and establish beautification programs to end divided responsibility on what should be done.

Infiltrating North Viet Unit Sought

Battalion Believed To Have Linked Up With Guerrillas

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Government troops sought Monday to find and destroy a North Vietnamese battalion reported to have linked up with the Viet Cong in the central highlands. U.S. planes maintained "round-the-clock" raids on North Viet Nam.

The high command ordered five battalions — perhaps 2,000 men — into a drive against the Communist enemy between Pleiku and the Cambodian frontier after three guerrilla ambushes elsewhere Saturday and Sunday cost the lives of five U.S. advisers and more than 100 Vietnamese casualties.

Copters Airlift Troops

U.S. helicopters lifted one of the government battalions to a landing zone 17 miles west of Pleiku, site of an American base 240 miles north of Saigon. Observers said there was considerable ground fire, but the helicopters made it in and out safely.

Information was lacking here on the identity of the infiltrating battalion. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara named one at a Washington news conference four weeks ago. He said North Viet Nam had sent the 2nd Battalion of its 101st Regiment, 325th Division, into the South. McNamara reported heavy Communist casualties forced the Hanoi regime to dispatch regulars.

Heavy casualties in weekend action were on the government side.

U.S. Toll Reaches 382
A U.S. Army enlisted man and 35 Vietnamese troops were killed Sunday in an ambush about 150 miles southwest of Saigon in An Xuyen Province, at the nation's southern tip. An American officer and 25 Vietnamese soldiers were missing.

The roll of U.S. combat dead in Viet Nam rose to 382. A U.S. military spokesman said Navy Skyhawks and Sky-raid-ers sank a North Vietnamese PT boat in flames in the Rao Nay River, 55 miles north of the border, damaged six military barracks and shot up four trucks in a series of strikes.

Air Force F105 jets were reported to have bombed barracks in the Vinh area and dropped one span of a bridge near Ha Tinh, 170 miles south of Hanoi, during attacks that covered 10 different highways. The spokesman said all the planes returned.

House Debates Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the 17th year in a row, the House wrangled Monday over a foreign aid authorization bill. The arguments had a very familiar ring.

The $3.4 billion program of overseas economic and military aid proposed by President Johnson comes up for amendments and final passage Tuesday. Monday was devoted to debate.

Passage of the measure is anticipated, but after that the program must undergo separate approval in the form of an appropriation bill which actually allows the spending of money. An authorization bill merely tells the administration to go ahead and plan a program.

Treasury Will Not Mint Silver Dollars After All

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury, reversing its decision of last week, announced Monday that it will not mint any new silver dollars "at this time."

The decision not to produce 45 million silver dollars—the first since 1935 — came at the urging of members of the coinage committees of Congress, the Treasury said.

On May 15, President Johnson announced that he had directed the mint to make the cart-wheels. He said they would be distributed in parts of the country where the silver dollar traditionally has been used as a medium of exchange.

The President's announcement touched off a storm of criticism both inside and out-

Senate Clears Way For Debate Cutoff Decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected Monday an amendment by Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., to rewrite key sections of the voting-rights bill urged by President Johnson.

The vote was 49-29. Disposing of this amendment apparently cleared the way for Tuesday's showdown on a leadership attempt to cut off the debate which started April 22. The leaders' objective is to pass the measure this week or next.

A GOP champion of the administration bill predicted proponents will rally the required two-thirds margin to invoke cloture.

Arguing the administration measure is of doubtful constitutionality, Tower said "We are running a grave risk of passing a bill the courts will wipe out."

His amendment would have provided for the appointment of federal registrars in any county from which the attorney general certified he had received 25 or more complaints of denial of the right to register voters in accordance with state qualification laws except that a person with a sixth-grade education would not have had to pass a literacy test.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, the Republican leader from Illinois, but a major architect of the administration measure, spoke confidently of the leaders' ability to muster the votes which would limit each senator to one hour of voting-rights talk before the final roll call.

An Associated Press survey indicated a bloc of undecided or undeclared Republicans holds the key to cloture.

It will take two-thirds of the senators voting to invoke cloture. That means 67, if all 100 members are on hand.

In the AP poll, 62 senators lined up for a limit on the debate, 26 declared themselves opposed.

150 Feared Dead In Ferry Sinking

ZOMBA, Malawi (UPI) — A ferryboat carrying more than 200 persons tipped over and dumped its passengers into a crocodile-infested river near here Sunday night. Officials said Monday 150 persons — mostly women and children — were feared dead.

It was believed to be one of Central Africa's worst recorded disasters.

Officials said the vessel keeled over and sank in the Shire River 30 miles from Zomba when a guide cable snapped. About 57 persons managed to make it to shore, a government official said. Survivors recounted tales of horror after seeing their friends and relatives die among the crocodiles in the muddy waters of the 200-yard-wide river.

Churchill Work Brings Top Price In Satellite Sale

NEW YORK (UPI)—A San Antonio, Tex., oilman Monday paid a record $39,200 for a painting by Sir Winston Churchill at an art auction linking New York and London via the Early Bird satellite.

John E. Newman placed the winning bid for the Churchill landscape, "Menaggio, Lake Como," through agent John V. Rowan. It had belonged to G. C. Mason, a friend to whom Churchill gave the painting in 1946.

It was the fourth painting by the late British prime minister to appear on the auction block. The previous top price for a Churchill was $26,000 bid at the Parke-Bernet galleries here last month for "Canal Scene."

Pistol-Firing School Teacher Subdued By Gas

CLAREMORE, Okla. (AP) — A Rogers County deputy sheriff said a school teacher who had shot at "persons she had shot at" was subdued Monday after officers used tear gas to stop her erratic shooting at children, the officers and a passing vehicle.

Deputy J. B. Hamby said the teacher, Miss Betty Potts, about 40, locked herself in her home with a 38-caliber pistol which she used in firing an estimated 12 shots. All but two of the shots, which struck a car driven by Sheriff Amos Ward, missed their targets.

No one was injured. Miss Potts, a veteran teacher in the Claremore and Rogers County school systems, was taken to a Claremore hospital and later transferred to a Tulsa hospital.

Deputy Hamby, who joined Ward in smashing the door to Miss Potts' home, said she had a list beside her which included the words "President Johnson." The words had been crossed out, Hamby said, and a question mark inserted.

Hamby said the list of names was used as a "tally sheet for the persons she had shot at. Each time she'd shoot at them, she'd mark down their name and how many times she had shot at them."

Miss Potts, a divorcee, received treatment for mental illness last year.

DST Bill Endorsed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill declaring that areas which adopt Daylight Saving Time must make it effective on the last Sunday in April and end it on the last Sunday in October won the Senate Commerce Committee's approval Monday.

Wirtz Charges 'Right-To-Work' Acts Misnomer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz told Congress Monday that state laws banning the union shop guarantee no one a job and cause disruptive industrial competition among the states.

He said they are falsely labeled "right-to-work" laws.

Wirtz said such laws banning the union shop in 19 states should be wiped out by repealing the section of federal labor laws that permits them.

"The argument that union shop agreements violate the freedom of individual employees has no substantial basis," Wirtz told a House labor subcommittee.

Under a union shop contract negotiated by a union and an employer, all employees covered by the contract must join the union.

Wirtz said the real issue had been buried under false claims — largely by supporters of so-called "right-to-work laws" — that they protect the freedom of workers. These supporters are virtually all businessmen, he added.

"There is no violation of freedom in a minority's having to accept a majority's fair judgment fairly arrived at," Wirtz asserted.

The National Right-to-Work Committee, which will testify later, promptly called Wirtz' testimony an administration attempt "to substitute force and compulsion for freedom of choice."

Reed Larson, executive vice president of the committee, said in a statement:

"Mr. Wirtz whitewashes the compulsion involved in so-called union shop contracts, attempts to clothe the highly political union organizations with governmental power, subordinates the rights of individuals to the privileges of private organizations and proposes a policy aimed at the elimination of debate on questions of public interest."

Venezuelans Fear Dominican Action LBJ's Bay Of Pigs

Crisis May Affect U.S.-Latin Ties

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Among highly placed Venezuelans one detects a feeling of foreboding, a fear that the United States has sowed a storm in the Dominican Republic and that Latin America will reap the whirlwind.

The Dominican intervention, one hears from responsible Venezuelans, may be President Johnson's Bay of Pigs — a political disaster possibly on a scale larger than that produced by the abortive invasion of Cuba in 1961.

Once again, these sources say, the United States plunged into a situation without the will to see it all the way through, stopped a rebellion but failed to go all the way to eliminate the rebel movement which it called Communist-infiltrated. The result was a prolonged crisis which produced a state of shock in much of Latin America.

Privately, highly placed sources say it probably is likely that the U.S. military action prevented a Castro-like takeover of the Dominican Republic. But they add that this does not save the situation, since the United States did this on its own without any prior consultation with the Organization of American States and thus, in their opinion, dealt a heavy blow to an already sick inter-American organization.

Extremist elements are laying in wait now. They are not expected immediately to mount their big efforts, but rather to reap what propaganda advantages may be gained from the U.S. intervention in a Latin-American nation.

The expectation is that Communist-Castroist elements will gather their forces for a new campaign to introduce widespread turmoil around the northern rim of this continent. This area remembers U.S. interventions before the days of the "Good Neighbor Policy" instituted by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

The university campuses seethe with activity. These virtually are recruiting grounds where tough, hard-core Communist elements seek manpower for a campaign of violence against the government of President Raul Leon. They are recruiting, too, among secondary schools, seeking teen-age boys who want opportunities to display juvenile heroism.

There is, of course, another viewpoint, which can be heard from some sources in the booming Venezuelan business world. This country is at the height of an era of new prosperity, despite all the political violence mounted by the hard core of the extreme left.

In these quarters, there is a definite note of satisfaction with the U.S. action in the Caribbean as if it served as a warning that Washington was ready to act with massive strength against any Communist threat anywhere.

AP Writer Found Dead

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI) — Jim Waldrup, 28, a staff writer for the Associated Press, was found dead in his apartment Monday, his throat cut with a butcher knife.

Police said robbery may have been the motive. The two-room bachelor apartment appeared to have been ransacked. His wallet and foreign car were missing.

Detective Capt. Joe Burch said the knife was found on the floor in the apartment. The victim's body was found lying in the doorway to his bedroom.

A lamp on a table in the living room was smashed and the shade was crushed, indicating a struggle. Blood was spattered on the floor and on the shade. Waldrup was unclothed, indicating he had been surprised by an intruder. The time of death was estimated at Saturday night or Sunday morning. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard L. Waldrup of Birmingham.

Three Convicts Slain In Attempted Break

PARCHMAN, Miss. (UPI) — Prison guards shot and killed three convicts Monday during an escape attempt at Parchman State Penitentiary.

Two other inmates managed to flee the prison in a stolen truck, but were recaptured about 90 minutes later, the state highway patrol reported.

Two of the prisoners were killed during the break, which occurred about noon, and the third died of wounds in an infirmary a short time later.

Gun Shipment To Selma Has King Worried

SELEMA, Ala. (UPI) — Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. expressed concern Monday over a large, but apparently routine, shipment of surplus military rifles to a gun dealer in this racially-scarred town.

It was King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) that notified the Justice Department of the shipment of 492 M-1, M-11 and 30.06 caliber rifles from a California firm to Walter H. Craig in Selma.

"I don't know why this shipment is causing such a stir," Craig said. "I am a licensed dealer and I am often receiving large shipments of guns. I sell them for hunting weapons."

The FBI said "There is nothing illegal that we know of about this shipment."

King was due in Montgomery Monday night to a rally in the Alabama capital city. In Bogalusa, La., Mayor Jesse Culter announced that a desegregation plan that he outlined in a radio talk Sunday night would not be implemented immediately because "we feel the racial tension is too high."

Culter has promised that all segregation ordinances will be repealed and that the town, troubled by repeated racial demonstrations, would hire Negroes for police duty, and perhaps other municipal jobs.

Negroes went along with the delay in implementing the plan and called off a city park picnic that was designed to test the pledge.

Queen Praises German Ties

STUTTGART, Germany (UPI) — Hundreds of thousands of cheering West Germans Monday welcomed Britain's Queen Elizabeth to the land of her grandmother's ancestors. The beaming monarch recalled to her hosts that she has German blood in her veins.

The queen was given a welcome more like a heroine's homecoming than a state visit. The Germans thronged the streets in rows 10 to 20 deep, as the queen grinned, laughed and endlessly waved her hand — a rare gesture for the usually reserved monarch.

In a short speech, the queen praised "the ties that bind us to this land" and said "I have Swabian blood in my veins; indeed my grandmother had many happy memories of visits to her father's relations near here."

Photographer Held For Kidnap-Murder

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — George Wayne White, a District of Columbia portrait photographer, was ordered held without bail Monday on charges of murder and kidnaping in the death of another man.

U.S. Commissioner Samuel Meloy ordered White, 21, held for the U.S. District Court in Baltimore on a kidnaping charge and for the U.S. District Court in the District of Columbia on a murder charge.

The charges stem from a shooting at a Connecticut Avenue portrait studio in Washington where White worked. The victim, Hiram E. Braswell, 49, died of a bullet wound May 5 at a face up in the doorway to his bedroom.

A lamp on a table in the living room was smashed and the shade was crushed, indicating a struggle. Blood was spattered on the floor and on the shade. Waldrup was unclothed, indicating he had been surprised by an intruder. The time of death was estimated at Saturday night or Sunday morning. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard L. Court Voids Restriction On Red Mail

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday declared unconstitutional a federal law which gave government officials the right to restrict U. S. mail delivery of foreign Communist propaganda publications.

By an 8-0 vote, the court held that the act passed by Congress in 1962 violated the First Amendment's guarantee of free speech.

In the main opinion, Justice William O. Douglas asserted that the scope of the act "is at war with the 'uninhibited, robust and wide-open' debate and discussion that are contemplated by the First Amendment."

Douglas spoke for himself and four other justices. In a concurring but separate opinion, Justice William Brennan Jr. said: "The dissemination of ideas can accomplish nothing if otherwise willing addressees are not free to receive and consider them. It would be a barren marketplace of ideas that had only sellers and no buyers."

Brennan was joined in his concurrence by Justices Arthur J. Goldberg and John M. Harlan. Justice Byron R. White, who was deputy attorney general at the time the bill was passed, did not participate in Monday's ruling.

Struck down was the requirement that Communist mail from foreign sources could not be delivered in this country unless the recipient specially requested the material.

Douglas said of this practice: "The addressee carries an affirmative obligation which we do not think the government may impose upon him."

He also quoted the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes as saying: "The United States may give up the post office when it sees fit, but while it carries it on, the use of the mails is almost as much a part of free speech as the right to use our tongues..."

Presbyterians Refuse To Quit Church Council

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Negro-white couples and their United Presbyterians without families have "lessened considerably," said Dr. Gayraud S. Wilmore Jr., executive director of the United Presbyterian Commission on Religion and Race.

The problems of social acceptance are "less today than they were yesterday and they will be less tomorrow than they are today," he said.

The subject was a prime issue at the 177th annual general assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., which has before it a proposal to extend official specific sanction to biracial marriages.

The council, an interdenominational cooperative organization including most of the nation's major Protestant and orthodox bodies, has taken an active role in the civil rights field through its commission on religion and race.

Dr. Arthur Link, professor of American history at Princeton University and a council vice president, later reported to the Presbyterian assembly "unprecedentedly ferocious and malignant attacks on the council."

Dr. Link said, "We cannot be good soldiers of Jesus Christ if we run for cover when the fire grows hot."

The Presbyterian governing body also shunted aside special resolutions on sexual morality, approving instead a brief motion that the church "does indeed reaffirm its adherence to our historic moral standards."

Earlier, Presbyterian authorities said that social taboos against Negro-white marriages sometimes lead youths into them for unsound reasons.

They maintained that elimination of the negative taboos would reduce the cases of such artificially motivated marriages, and provide a fairer atmosphere for the responsible ones.

This is gradually happening, they said, as interracial marriage becomes increasingly common in America. Difficulties encountered by

Go Ahead... Go Cadillac!

Before you buy any car at any price, consider a Cadillac first of all. New or previously owned, a Cadillac is the one way to be sure your investment will buy the most and last the longest.

Whatever you have budgeted for your next car, your Cadillac dealer has a Cadillac to fit your plans. Naturally, if your choice were unrestricted, you would prefer a new 1965 Cadillac like the Sedan de Ville in front. Next best would be a late-model, previously-owned Cadillac such as the black 1963 Sedan de Ville, above. A well-maintained, one-owner used Cadillac is actually the only real rival of a new Cadillac. Because of the popularity of the 1965 model, your authorized dealer is the one logical place to go for the best selection of fine used Cadillacs.

AT CITIZENS' CONFERENCE — Dr. James A. Sensenbaugh, Maryland state superintendent of schools, addresses the "Citizens' Conference on the Free State's Future" at Silver Spring yesterday. James L. Reid, director of the State Vocational Education Division (left), and George Heinze, chairman of the conference

Assateague Master Plan Need Is Cited

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP)—A recent court decision underscores the need for a master plan to regulate private development on Assateague Island, a Maryland health official said Monday.

Robert M. Brown, director of Environmental Hygiene for the Maryland Health Department, discussed the Assateague Island dispute during a panel discussion of a "Maryland 1970" conference sponsored by the Montgomery County Republican Committee.

Brown said state officials expect to meet shortly with Worcester County leaders to discuss a possible master plan.

A Maryland court of appeals decision led recently to the issuing of eight septic tank permits for private development on Assateague Island which the Interior Department wants to turn into a national seashore park.

State health officials had denied the permits for the 24-mile long island because no private development is planned by government officials there.

Brown said the state doesn't plan to appeal the court decision to the Supreme Court because the state's law department feels it has insufficient constitutional grounds to carry the case further.

He added a ninth request for a septic tank plus additional inquiries about obtaining permits have been made since the court's decision.

Brown said Worcester officials drew up a preliminary development plan for Assateague last week.

In another panel discussion, James A. Sensenbaugh, state school superintendent, said the use of computers and educational television could expand the teaching process through 24 hours each day, at home and at school.

Far more use will be made in the future of mechanical aids to help both teachers and pupils, Sensenbaugh predicted.

"In congested areas, there is no reason why schools should not be available for learning from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. or even at night," he said.

Noting schools now operate only 9 or 10 months of each year, he said "we could hold schools 200 days a year with little difficulty."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Hervey G. Machen, D-Md., has complained that the Office of Education is not being consistent with other federal agencies in procedure for determining if school districts qualify for funds.

He said the office "refused even to look" at a form signed by the Prince Georges County Board of Education that it is complying with the civil rights act. Machen, who lives in Prince Georges, said similar or identical forms are accepted by other federal agencies.

He has written the Attorney General urging him to establish a consistent policy for all departments.

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP)—Walter A. Monath, 33, of Clear-spring has been committed to the Springfield State Hospital at his own request.

Monath has been in the Carroll County jail for 10½ months for refusing to contribute to support of his three children.

State-Owned Restaurant Tax Case Court-Bound

BALTIMORE (AP)—The legal position the restaurant is tax exempt because it is owned by the state.

A similar case involving a service station adjacent to Maryland House has been taken to court by Humble Oil Co.

"The question is whether this type of facility is intended by law to be exempted from taxation or not," Deputy Atty. Gen. Robert Murphy said today.

"It's a very real legal problem concerning Harford's right to tax the lessee."

As to the possibility that Harford County might sell the restaurant because of unpaid taxes, Murphy said: "Clearly they can't sell what belongs to the state."

Ernest Cory of Laurel, counsel for Gladieux, said today the ruling would be appealed within 30 days to the Maryland Tax Court. He said the Ohio firm takes the case.

Katherine E. Anderson, Harford County treasurer, says $13,592 in taxes are due on the restaurant for the fiscal year ending June 30. On Friday, the county's Board of Tax Appeals ruled that Gladieux owes the taxes.

Secrets Of Charm by John Robert Powers

Time To Start Fitting Figure Into Swimsuit

Ever since the day fabric in swimsuits was reduced to a practical minimum for swimming, swimsuits have posed a figure problem. The suit can't "just hang" on your frame, nor should it look as though there were too much of you poured into it. The fashion must be right for the figure, and the figure equally flattering to the swimsuit.

In another column, we'll talk about swim fashions. Today let's concentrate on the "figger" and how you can improve upon its contours.

I'll just mention diet briefly, for I know you're conscious of this important factor governing your good looks. If it's trimming down you require to bring those looks into line, hold your daily caloric quota under 1,500; for plus pounds, a daily minimum of 3,200 calories.

Pair your balanced diet with exercise. These routines from my physical education laboratory will help shape you up for the sun days.

1. For firming the bosom, sit with arms raised straight overhead. Curl your fingers as if to grasp an imaginary rod. Slowly bend your elbows and pull your arms down until your elbows almost touch each other at chest level. Relax, and repeat 15 times a day, at the beginning. Increase to 50 times as soon as that count does not fatigue you.

2. For a smoother midriff, lie flat on the floor with arms outstretched at shoulder level. Pull your knees up to your chest. Slowly straighten legs together so you feel the pull in your abdomen and back. Do this 12 times at first, increasing as you can.

3. For reducing the hips, lie flat on the floor, arms outstretched parallel with the shoulders, knees bent. Swing your knees left, then right, coming as near the floor as you can on each side. Let your hips roll. Do this exercise to music so you'll acquire a real swing as you touch the knees on either side 15 to 20 times.

You'll feel quite a lot of pull on the muscles when you do these exercises correctly. You may even be stiff and sore at first, but as the routines become easier and you begin to see results, you'll be glad you put up with those early aching muscles.

The object of these figure refiners is just unless exercise and diet are abetted by erect posture. Slouching can make the most stylish of swimsuits look unstylish, so hold your chest up, straighten your back, tuck your hips under . . . stand tall!

BETTER FIGURE CONTROL can be yours if you know how to calculate your ideal weight. Send for John Robert Powers' figure-refining pamphlet, "How Much Should You Weigh?" to start your "idealizing" program. Send life and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Mr. Powers in care of this newspaper. Your copy will arrive in two weeks.

Ann Landers . . . Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Our daughter is 22. She is engaged to a young man we do not know at all well. This girl has finished college and has always shown good judgment—except in the selection of her fiancé.

The young man has an apartment in a bad section of town. He frequently phones our daughter at night and asks her to come to his place. She dashes out the door whenever he calls and never returns before midnight—always alone.

Are we old-fashioned? Should we speak up or remain silent?
—B. CAL.

DEAR B.: You aren't old-fashioned, you're just too late. Your daughter didn't get this way overnight. It's obvious that she is so hungry for male attention that she will do anything to get it.

As parents you have an obligation to speak up. Having spoken up, say no more. A girl 22 must (and probably will) make her own decision about when and where she will see her fiancé.

A young man cannot respect a girl who has no self-respect. He demeans her by asking her to come to his place. And she degrades herself by caving in to his selfish demands.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Will you kindly devote a little space to the proper dress for women who work in offices? It would be a national service.

At this moment I am looking at two girls who appear to be wearing shortened formals. One dress is cut so low that the office boy drops the mail on her desk he looks at the ceiling.

Another dame is decked out in a sweater decorated with red and green sequins. I practically go blind when the sun hits her. The girl behind me is wearing a black lace cocktail dress on which she has sewn white collars and cuffs. The black patent leather belt matches her shoes. And while you're at it, Annie, what do you think of the bee hive hair-do for office wear?

VIEW FROM THE 10TH FLOOR

DEAR VIEW: Beehives are fine if you happen to have bees. In an office—no. The same goes for sequins, satin and lace dresses, and those low-cut numbers.

Girls who wear fussy, party-type outfits to work look as if they slept away from home the night before and came straight to work from the party.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am married to a wonderful guy. He is 21. I am 16.

My parents didn't want me to get married but I hated school and wasn't learning anything. My mind was on Tony all the time. It seemed stupid to try to be a student when I just wanted to be Tony's wife.

Whenever I mentioned marriage my mother went through the ceiling. One day I decided to tell her I was pregnant so she'd have to let me get married.

My plan worked but now I'm afraid I outsmarted myself. Tony and I have been married three months and I am still not pregnant. According to what I told my mother I should be five months along. She is worried because I'm so thin and she keeps asking me why I haven't gained weight.

If I tell her the truth can she have the marriage annulled?
—GIRL WHO HAD TO LIE

DEAR GIRL: Tell your mother the truth—and the sooner the better. The age of consent and laws bearing on annulment vary from state to state. See a lawyer.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The traffic report of Wilbur Smith and Associates submitted to the Mayor and Council this week is a preliminary one and more detailed studies looking to a "master plan" would be included in "stage two" of the operation.

The preliminary study cost $2,500. Any further action will mean additional cost depending on the degree of study the city would wish.

The engineering firm, which has offices in Baltimore, said traffic studies will be undertaken to provide the information required in development of plans dealing with: Traffic circulation and control — one-way streets, turn controls and through streets; traffic signal coordination and timing — review of signal operation and timing; curb parking and truck loading — regulations and restrictions; off-street parking supply, demand and needs; capital improvements including streets, highways and bridges; and projection of 1985 traffic desires and patterns and determination of 1985 road needs.

As a basis for this work, all data recently collected by the Maryland State Roads Commission would be utilized and supplemented by traffic volume counts at key intersections to establish peak hour directional movements as well as turns and classification of traffic; inventory of one-way streets, turn controls, through streets, STOP sign locations, parking and loading controls for the central business area and arterial and collector streets; inventory of traffic signal equipment and operation; parking duration and turnover studies in the downtown area in both curb and off-street facilities; and truck loading demands and needs in the downtown area and on major street network.

Close cooperation would be maintained with city and state agencies concerned with the traffic problem and downtown renewal plans as well as the Cumberland Thruway and other local improvements integrated with the plans to be developed in the study, the report said.

Appropriate temporary or detour routes must be developed for use during construction of the Thruway and interim reports and/or consultation would be prepared during this period with responsible agencies.

Projection of future traffic demands and needs must be made and recent SRC studies provide most of the basic data required, the report said.

Additional information may be obtained by a limited number of dwelling unit interviews. The SRC study did not determine the number of trips made within residential areas or between one part of town and another which did not require trips through the downtown area. The number of trips made by transit was also not obtained from the SRC study.

Dwelling unit interviews would number 100 to 200. Land use data would have to be developed by traffic zones. Such data would include estimates for each traffic zone of population, employment, school attendance, resident students, income level, land use, vehicle transportation and retail sales.

This information would be used to relate present trip productions and attractions to land use variables so that models can be developed to predict future traffic generation and distribution, the report said.

The resulting report would include a traffic improvement program with curb parking controls, one-way streets and turn controls signal improvements and timing adjustments; and off-street parking program, capital improvements program for streets and related facilities, analysis of existing and anticipated 1985 traffic patterns, a 1985 road network capable of handling traffic for that year and which will be based upon the presently programmed highway improvements and indicated future traffic patterns, and proposals for implementing the recommended improvements including creation of a traffic authority, assignment of responsibilities and establishment of interdepartmental relationships.

LOUGHBOROUGH, England (UPI) — A group of workers who moved from Newcastle-on-Tyne to a factory here so dislike the local beer that they have arranged to pay a trucker $67 a week to drive the 350-mile round trip to Newcastle each week to haul in barrels of their favorite brew.

City Attorney Hugh A. McMullen said he had asked petitioners' attorney (Thomas N. Berry) to provide a copy of the petition. He said when it is received, a copy will be placed in the clerk's office and residents can remove their names if they desire.

Other comment made today at council came from Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder who said she had been informed a large crowd used facilities at Constitution Park Sunday. She added other facilities will be completed soon and she hoped that they would give the public even more pleasure. The park officially opens Memorial Day.

Job Training Funds Asked

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Gov. Tawes asked Monday for federal aid to help finance a work and training program in Maryland forests and parks for 265 youths.

In a letter to the Neighborhood Youth Corps Manpower Administration, Tawes said the proposed $191,000 program would give "unemployed youths an opportunity not only to improve their status in our society, but also to improve their knowledge and aptitude for securing employment in the future."

If the governor's request is approved, the federal government would provide $166,410, with the rest of the project cost to be borne by the State Department of Forests and Parks.

The program would be for youths 16 to 21 years old, unemployed and in economic need, who would be paid $1.25 an hour for a 30 hour work week.

During the 12-week program, they would work under the supervision of forest and park rangers on such jobs as surveying traffic and construction of fire breaks, access roads and trails.

Opening lead: Four of ♠ South turned in a creditable performance in the bidding and play of the six heart contract to earn a very substantial profit for his side on the deal.

North opened the bidding with one club and South responded with one heart. North's jump raise to three hearts is proper, for his hand revalues to 18 points in support.

South has the equivalent of an opening bid himself and, recognizing that the partnership is in the slam zone, he shows his interest in going places by cue bidding the ace of diamonds. North reciprocated in spades. When South made a further try by announcing the club control, North proceeded without further ado to six hearts.

West decided to pursue a neutral course, and he, therefore, opened the four of hearts. Declarer observed that, if he took a finesse in trumps and lost to the king, a heart return by East would leave the dummy with only two trumps, and South would be unable to ruff out all of his diamonds.

In order to retain control of the play, South put up the ace of hearts at trick one. A diamond was led to the ace followed by a diamond ruff in dummy. The closed hand was reentered with the king of clubs to trump another diamond.

The ace and king of spades were cashed and South discarded a club. On the ace of clubs, he disposed of a diamond. When the jack of clubs appeared from the East hand, declarer decided that it would be safe to come off dummy with that suit. East discarded on the club and declarer ruffed with the five of hearts.

South led his last diamond and trumped with North's nine of hearts. East overruffed with the king, but that was the only trick he took, for declarer was in the slam zone, he left with the Q-J-10 of hearts and he claimed the balance.

Woman To Woman

NEW YORK (UPI)—X-rays offer hope of improving earlier detection of breast cancer and thus improving the chances of saving the victim, says Dr. Arthur J. Present, past president of the American College of Radiology.

The nation's leading radiologists, assembled at a seminar here on the present status of breast X-ray, were told the technique has proved to be the only means by which breast cancer can be detected before signs and symptoms are present—that is, before lumps and other danger-changes in tissue can be felt or seen.

As a result of the seminar findings, the American College of Radiology has voted to endorse the technique of breast X-ray as a valuable diagnostic technique which can be learned and used reliably by most radiologists.

The board further referred to the College Commission on Education a proposal that the college join the cancer control program of the Public Health Service in sponsoring a nationwide teaching program in breast X-ray.

Dr. Present, of Tucson, Ariz., who headed the seminar, said that an extraordinary emphasis on X-ray was justified by the lack of improvement in the cure rate of breast cancer over the past 20 years.

The technique of X-raying the breast dates back to 1930 but only recently has it come into widespread acceptance.

It wasn't until the early 1960's, when a long-term clinical test was undertaken by Dr. Robert L. Egan, then at the M.D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute, Houston, Tex., that breast X-ray became a promising diagnostic tool.

Before that, radiologists with notable exceptions who did attempt to use the technique of ten had difficulty in gaining acceptance from other radiologists.

Dr. Egan feels the main reason for the unsatisfactory results was poor instruction materials.

The results of Dr. Egan's study, spanning four years, showed breast X-ray was accurate as a diagnostic tool. He performed pre-biopsy X-ray on 240 breast cancers in a series of a thousand cases.

Of these 240 cases, Dr. Egan diagnosed 238 as cancerous, judging from what he saw on the X-ray pictures. Out of 2,000 study cases, his method of X-ray resulted in 97 per cent diagnostic accuracy.

Dr. Egan, who is participating in the seminar here, is now associate professor of radiology at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga.

Elks Sponsor Scholarship For Nurse Training

Cumberland Lodge 63, B. P. O. Elks has established a scholarship fund to be earmarked for the Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, G. James Miller, exalted ruler announced Sunday.

The three-year scholarship will be awarded to one of 45 young women scheduled to begin nurses' training at the hospital in September.

Recipient of the scholarship must be a local resident living within the jurisdiction of Cumberland Lodge. The award basis will include her need for financial assistance and her high school scholastic record and pre-nursing examination will be evidence of her ability and willingness to undertake the three-year nursing course, Mr. Miller said.

A committee of Elks members has been appointed by Mr. Miller to select the recipient of the scholarship and to administer the fund. Chairman is J. Thomas Kegg, leading knight of the lodge; Earl M. Nonnenmann, a past exalted ruler; Dr. Leo H. Ley and Dr. J. G. Stegmaier. The committee is being assisted by Mrs. Gladys Brooks, director of nursing at Memorial Hospital. Each member will serve three years.

The scholarship fund, totaling $725, will be so allocated as to cover the three-year span normally necessary for completion of nurse's training.

Appointment of the fund will be scaled to recognize the required heavy initial expenses and diminishing monetary needs during the period. The fund provides $520, $135 and $70 for the three years respectively. If, during the training period, the recipient is unable to continue the course, she will forfeit the remainder of the scholarship fund and the committee will then select another recipient. This second recipient will have available to her the unused portion of the fund.

"We believe the money expended for this project will have a threefold return," Mr. Miller said, adding "(1) As Elks we will be providing a young student

Plumbing Code Is Passed By City Council

The Mayor and Council yesterday passed a Plumbing Code containing nothing which would require a master plumber or professional man to do the work but requiring city inspection when major work is completed.

The ordinance, according to City Attorney Hugh A. McMullen, placed the burden on the person doing the work. He must be sure it will pass city inspection and is required to report when such major work is ready for inspection, the attorney said.

Council unanimously passed the ordinance, introduced three weeks ago, after Allen L. Reuschel, 701 Glenmore Street, had asked for an explanation of certain phases of the new law.

He questioned if it were absolutely necessary, claimed that a hired inspector would mean an added tax burden, suggested it was an invasion of the property owner's right to do work of which he was capable, and said it could be a burden on persons with fixed incomes.

Mr. McMullen's explanation followed Mr. Reuschel's questions. The city attorney said the ordinance is a general one. It concerns regulations of materials, fixtures and installations, maintenance, extension and alteration of pipe fixture appliances in connection with public or private sanitary or storm drainage facilities and all water supply systems. It also provides for an inspector, sets forth his duties, lists a section on permits and another on penalties.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney pointed out that the county also is going to have a plumbing code.

Glenn Watson Jr., local realtor, asked that if this is true, why should the city have an inspector. Mr. Watson said the city is part of the county and he felt the county inspector should do the job.

Mr. Watson said this is an example of "double taxation" since the city resident would be paying for a city inspector and sharing in the cost of a county inspector doing the same job.

Mr. McMullen said council did not know what the county was going to do but only that the city was attempting to adopt a code. If in the future, he said, the county adopts a plumbing code, then "it seems reasonable that we could work together."

Charter Unit Hears Reports

Preliminary reports from two study committees were presented at yesterday's meeting of the Cumberland Charter Commission.

A report on the financial units of the city was presented by former Chief Judge George Henderson, commission chairman, and Roy S. Weed, business manager of Allegany Community College.

A preliminary report on the Police and Fire and the Water departments was given by Robert L. Lewis, Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company electrician.

Similar reports by other committees are expected at the next meeting, Judge Henderson reported.

C. E. Stutzman, vice president of Local 453, Teamsters Union, assumed his duties on the commission yesterday, succeeding Rev. Bryce Shoemaker.

The nine-member commission appointed by the Mayor and Council has held two previous meetings, the first to organize and the second to divide itself into study committees.

Appalachia Aid Meeting Canceled

Members of the Appalachia-Maryland Community Action Committee are being notified that a meeting planned here tomorrow has been canceled.

Del. R. Samuel Dillon Jr., Hancock, committee chairman, said that no state official who is familiar with the program will be available that day.

He said the state Appalachia commission will meet early in June and suggested that the area group meet June 16 at 11 a. m. in Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Court Ruling On Man Sought

A petition in Allegany County Circuit Court was filed yesterday seeking a finding of disappearance or death in the case of a man who was reported to have been last seen alive here over nine years ago.

The petition was filed by Lester Smith, RD 4, Oldtown Road, and Earl Smith, 110 Mullin Street, in the case involving their uncle, Clarence H. Smith, formerly of 232 Mary Street, who was last seen alive here in December 1955.

An investigation was undertaken through the U.S. Railroad Retirement Board, the Veterans Administration and city police, but no trace of the man ever was found, the nephews stated. They stated that their uncle would be 69 years old if still living and he was not in good health at the time of his disappearance.

The petition says that the missing man's only known asset is the improved real property at 232 Mary Street.

The idea for the car wash to benefit the school originated with Teddy Schriver and Pat Fletcher, two of the eighth-graders. They put the plans into execution for the car wash benefit.

ABL Rocket To Be Used In Test Shot

A rocket motor, designed, developed and manufactured at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory, will be used to help orbit a space explorer on Friday, the try coming on the heels of another ABL success from Cape Kennedy on Saturday.

On Friday, a Delta rocket is scheduled to orbit an IMF (interplanetary monitoring platform) and one of its components will be the fantastically successful X-238 Altair, ABL's major contribution to this country's space efforts.

Last Saturday, ABL's X-238 Altair motor was used to ram a 200-pound spacecraft back through the earth's atmosphere in a project designed to measure the temperatures a spacecraft feels from the super-hot layer of gases that build up ahead of its heat shield.

Inspect B24 Wreckage

OSTELLATO, Italy (UPI)—Police investigated the shattered wreckage Sunday of a United States Air Force B24 that crashed in flames near here in May, 1944. Mud and water had covered the wreckage in a swamp until a recent drought revealed it.

A local resident said he remembered that one member of the crew had parachuted from the plane and was later arrested by the Germans. The body of another crew member was found near the scene at the time of the crash.

City Grants Long Holiday To Employees

The Mayor and Council will meet next Tuesday at 10 a. m. instead of the usual time Monday since that day will be part of the Memorial Day holiday for city employees.

The Mayor and Council approved the Monday holiday at its meeting yesterday.

In other action, council authorized Water Commissioner G. Ray Light to seek bids for a 12-inch water transmission line from Wills Creek Avenue to the proposed tank atop Haystack Mountain; an 8- and 10-inch water main from Seneca Avenue to Haystack; and an 8- and 10-inch sanitary sewer line from Brad-dock Road to Haystack.

Mayor Earl D. Chaney was authorized to advertise for bids for a truck vehicle for the flood maintenance and airport foreman since the present vehicle has been transferred to the airport replacing one which is past service and uneconomical to repair.

The city had asked bids for painting the rotating beacon and tower at Municipal Airport but had received none by deadline time today. It will be re-advised.

Bids were received on a heavy duty van type truck for the Fire Department from Grallon Ford, $2,044.52; and McIntyre Chevrolet, $2,063 and referred to Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan.

A bid from the Hydromatic Division of Chicago Pump in the amount of $2,314 for a sampling machine for the sewage treatment plant was referred to Street Commissioner Lucile Roeder.

Payments ordered included $44,544 to the Maryland State Roads Commission representing the city share under an agreement for moving publicly owned utilities necessitated by the Cumberland Thruway viaduct $3,828 to come from the Water Department and $40,716 from the Special Projects Fund; $6,461 to Delta Engineering as partial payment for storm sewer system design work; $1,408.28 to Alex J. Schute as partial payment for improvements at Constitution Park Casino, and $10,663 to George F. Hazelwood Company for work and materials in connection with the lowlift pump and gate rehabilitation project at Lake Gordon.

Dr. Ruth Patterson Named Reading Supervisor

A specialist in the field of reading and reading problems will join the staff of the Allegany County Board of Education, according to a year-around basis.

The new staff member is Dr. Ruth M. Patterson, Frostburg, who is completing her second year at Frostburg State College as an associate professor of education.

Scheduled to start her new duties around July 1, Dr. Patterson will place emphasis on the diagnosis of reading problems with students on the elementary level, Mr. Webster said.

One of her first activities will be to identify by test and school records those pupils who are experiencing difficulty in keeping up with their grade levels in reading, according to Mr. Webster, who said Dr. Patterson then will set up procedures for assisting the children with their problems.

For the past few years, the Board of Education has conducted remedial reading programs during the summer months, but with the addition of Dr. Patterson to the staff, the program will be conducted on a year-around basis.

Mr. Webster said Dr. Patterson also will conduct an in-service training program for the elementary teachers.

A native of Nebraska, Dr. Patterson is a graduate of Reynolds College for eight years.

Dr. Patterson taught in Nebraska schools on the elementary, junior high and high school levels, with specialization in English. She taught elementary education for two years at the University of Nebraska, and was assistant professor of elementary education at Hastings (Neb.) College for eight years.

Americans Join Secret Moscow Jam Sessions

By FRED COLEMAN

LENINGRAD, U.S.S.R. (AP) — It started like a cloak and dagger spy story. The Russian said only to take such and such a number bus and get off at the end of the line.

There the Russian met the Americans, in the rain, and took them down a narrow street to the meeting place. Before entering the building he warned, "don't speak English."

The group climbed to a second floor hall, an ornate theater in czarist times and now part of a workers' club.

And there under the banner "Forward Toward the Victory of Communism" unfolded the first Soviet-American jazz jam session in Leningrad since the Benny Goodman band toured here three years ago.

They played for 150 minutes in the empty hall with the music, ranging from traditional to ultra modern jazz, serving as their only common language.

The young Russians — two engineers, a physicist and a musician — were enthralled.

There is only one known public platform for jazz in this city of three million people — the "White Nights" cafe where jazz groups play two nights a week. Apparently the rest is played on the sly.

Russian jazz buffs have no sheet music and no technique books. They tape record Western jazz from short wave radio broadcasts. Then they go through the painstaking process of continually replaying the tapes until they can transcribe the notes on sheet music. Only then can they sit down and practice.

"This is phenomenal," one of the Americans said. "Any criticism of their playing is unfair. What they lack in technique they compensate for in enthusiasm and natural ability."

The Americans knew their music. They were all members of the touring Cleveland Symphony Orchestra and amateur jazz musicians as well.

Three of them — Dick Weiner, Joe Adato and Bob Matson — were drummers. Matson also played jazz piano. A fourth, John Rautenberg, played the flute.

Three times during their five-week Soviet tour they played jazz with Russians.

Russians always asked, "why don't your jazz musicians play here?" Weiner said he answered, "because, I guess, your government won't let them."

Weiner said at the end of the jam session a Russian would tell him something like, "how can we be enemies when we understand each other so well in music?"

Weiner added, "Americans would say it was corny, but I think it was genuine."

In Moscow, jazz is played publicly at several youth cafes and a recent secret jazz festival took the first step toward giving this music official respectability. In Moscow the Americans played openly with Russians before an audience in a youth cafe.

"There was no problem of amalgamation," Weiner said. "It was as if we had always played together. It just happened."

Businessmen Prefer Waiters

CHICAGO (UPI) — The nation's leading businessmen prefer that the thumb which serves the soup be that of a waiter instead of the manicured digit of a waitress, a survey showed Sunday.

The survey was conducted for a restaurant furniture manufacturer (B. Bordy Seating Co.) and results were released at the National Restaurant Association exposition in the McCormick Place Convention Hall here.

Owen Reese III, an official of the sponsoring firm, said the survey involved 500 corporation presidents and vice presidents in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, Houston, St. Louis and Milwaukee.

"Significantly, fewer businessmen want the distraction of a pretty waitress than you might think," Reese said.

One reason might be that 51 per cent of the executives responding said they sometimes have women guests at business lunches.

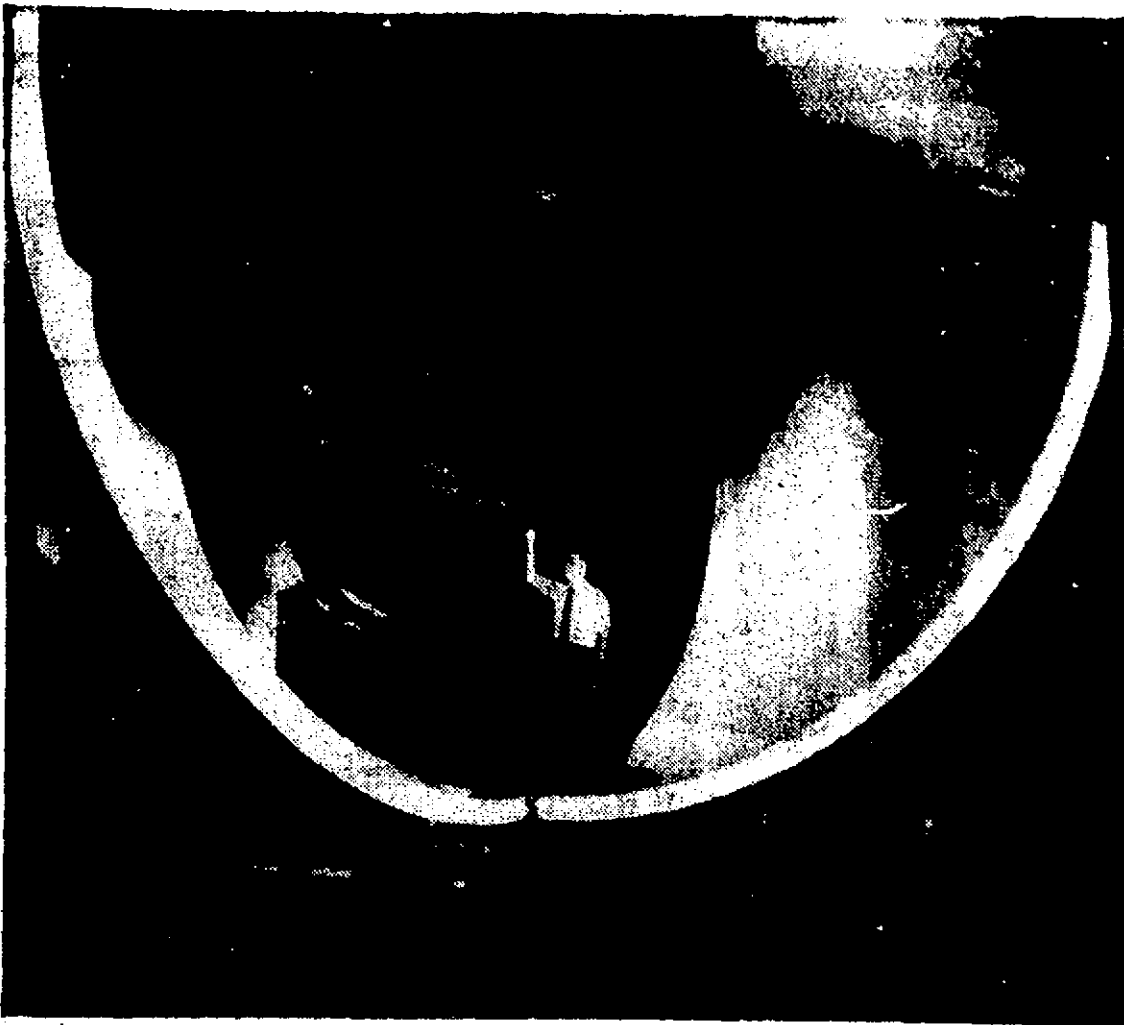

At any rate, only 9 per cent of the executive said they preferred to be served by waitresses, while 23 per cent expressed a preference for waiters.

Accompanying Miss Raye will be guitarist Earl Colbert and Ollie Harris on bass.

ENTRANCE TO "OUTER SPACE"—In this moon-flight simulator, three crews of three men each will take simulated seven-day flights to the moon soon at the Martin Co. in Baltimore. The white shell around the simulated spacecraft that looks like the wings on some giant bird of prey, closes to completely encompass the simulator. On the shield are projected some 2,300 major stars and constellations. The screen also is used to project a view of the moon's surface in the lunar landing phase of the missions. (AP Photofax)

Chinese Plan School Reform

By CHARLES LYNCH

PEKING (AP) — The principle of half study, half work will be applied to all schools and universities in China as rapidly as possible Hwang Hsin Pal, director of the industrial education office of the ministry of higher learning, says.

In an interview, Hwang said this radical reform — which cuts the school year in half and substitutes six months of physical labor — had been decided upon to accelerate development of a new type of Chinese citizen, the worker intellectual.

The program represents admission by the Red Chinese that the present system of up to two months physical labor for students does not meet their objective and that equal parts of study and labor are the answer even at the cost of slowing up training of vitally needed technicians in industry and agriculture.

Hwang said China's objective was to produce a new type of person — intellectual worker-peasants. The new schools would reduce the financial burden both on the state and the students' families.

Hwang said consideration is being given to the level of remuneration students might receive during their six months of work but at present when students put in their time in the factory or on the farm they receive little or nothing — so expansion of the program could create a large pool of child and student labor available to state enterprises, urban and rural, at no cost.

A thermometer registers colder when it is first thrust suddenly into hot water.

Synthetic Caviar Made By Russian Scientists

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet scientists said Sunday they have produced synthetic caviar which is indistinguishable from the real thing.

"Caviar for the masses" is their slogan.

A Soviet reporter who compared the taste of the man-made delicacy to the variety which comes from sturgeon said he couldn't tell the difference.

"The only shortcoming of the chemical caviar is that you can't produce fish from it," said the weekly newspaper Nedelya.

The newspaper said the breakthrough would take caviar out of the luxury class.

The best caviar costs $10 a pound here compared with about $40 a pound abroad.

Nedelya said the fish egg delicacy had been synthesized at the Institute of Elementary Organic Compounds of the U.S.S.R. Academy of Science.

The Controlled U.S. Economy

In general, of course, the proposed cuts in federal excise taxes are designed to give the consumer a break and provide a shot in the arm for the economy. Specifically, they should offset depressing factors that may be at work in the economy early next year.

In all likelihood, Social Security taxes will be taking a bigger bite out of paychecks starting January 1. This is because Congress appears almost certain to pass Medicare, and also to provide increased Social Security benefits. These will be financed by larger payroll deductions and bigger tax payments by employers.

These could have a depressing effect on the economy. But if the excise tax cuts go into effect before then, the impact of the increased Social Security taxes could be lessened. Everything points to early action on the excise cuts.

Administration officials are hopeful the bill can be enacted before July 1. Some of the cuts will be retroactive, and the bulk of the tax relief would be effective by January 1.

So the chances appear good that the economic boom will continue, fed by the new fuel of the excise reductions. Really the only dark cloud on the economic picture was the Medicare-Social Security increases, and this will now be blunted by the excise cuts.

More and more the nation has a controlled economy. This tax melody played from the console in Washington is further evidence of it: A little treble here, a little bass there, and the tune is prosperity.

These Days

By John Chamberlain

Conservatives And Lindsay

The Conservative Party of New York, a "leverage" group dedicated to keeping the Republican Party from falling into Left-wing hands, polled 122,000 votes last fall within the environs of New York City for its Senatorial candidate, Henry Paulucci. These votes could be crucial in the forthcoming contest for the mayor's job between Liberal Republican John Lindsay and Liberal Democrat Bob Wagner. The disposition of the 122,000 votes, assuming that the Conservative Party can continue to control them, has been the subject of a truly agonizing appraisal during the past few days in conservative circles.

When the Lindsay candidacy was first announced, one element in the New York City Conservative Party hierarchy argued that it would be foolish to put a third candidate in the field against Lindsay and Wagner. The rationale behind this attitude was that a contest for mayor involved housekeeping issues, not ideological considerations of Right versus Left.

A slightly Machiavellian twist on this thinking had it that it might be a good thing from the conservative standpoint to get John Lindsay out of the House of Representatives in Washington, where he can do positive harm by voting with the Left on foreign policy and on high domestic spending, and into a city hall job that would engage his energies in such non-partisan matters as making a great metropolis both clean and safe for its inhabitants.

This point of view, however, seems to have been rejected by the ruling elements among the Conservatives. They frankly fear that the Liberal Republicans are mainly interested in the New York City Hall as a launching pad for State and national victories. As one important Conservative leader put it, "If Lindsay should run well, it would give great leverage to the Kuchel-Scott type of Republicanism. We've got to consider that there's more than New York City at stake here. There's Albany and the Republican 1968 convention to think about."

Even so, the Conservative Party, while it was veering toward putting up a candidate against Lindsay and Wagner, held back for a period. But when John Lindsay indicated that he would put a review board over the New York City Police, this did it. Unless Lindsay changes his mind, the odds at this moment are that the Conservative Party will name its own candidate for mayor to take on both Lindsay and Wagner. The Conservatives think that "second-guessing" the police is an invitation to anarchy.

The probability of a conservative candidacy may seem of little importance to many, but in a boiling contest 122,000 votes added to or subtracted from the Lindsay total could change the political future of the nation. It is not merely Lindsay's reputation that will be riding on the result this fall. This is a fish-or-cut-bait proposition for Republican Senator Jacob Javits as well. For Javits, as Lindsay's practical manager and mentor, is putting his own great prestige as a New York City vote-getter on the line.

With his own popularity among liberals, and his strong roots among those who grew up on the old East Side, Jake Javits has been able to win majority support for himself inside what is normally a heavily Democratic city. But when he pushed Ken Keating for the U.S. Senate against Bobby Kennedy last fall, he couldn't quite swing enough votes in the city to carry the day for his man. His excuse was that the Johnson coffins and the Kennedy name were insuperable obstacles, and that, all things considered, Ken Keating did very well to come as close to beating Kennedy as he did.

Next November, however, there can be no excuses. If Javits can corral the last measure of votes necessary to put Lindsay over as mayor, it would, even as the Conservative Party fears, have tremendous national significance. Javits would at once become a prime contender for the Vice Presidency. Lindsay could move on to Albany as governor, or to Washington as Senator. But if Lindsay takes a beating, both he and Javits will be in trouble.

This is why the action of a "leverage" party such as the one that is run by the Conservatives is important. As for the Liberal Party, another "leverage" group, it has had its share of Wagner patronage over the years. Could it possibly shift to Lindsay? One doubts it. And so we are left with a piquant situation, with Wagner presumably benefiting from the actions of two splinter parties that were originally designed to negate each other.

President Should Speak To Chinese People

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — While the government of the United States does not recognize the government of Red China, there is no reason why the American President should not speak to all the people on the mainland of Asia.

Though there has been reluctance and long delay in placing upon the Peiping regime the responsibility for the trouble in Vietnam and the unrest in Asia, President Johnson has at last pinpointed the Red Chinese government as a real threat to peace and as the sponsor of the revolutions and guerrilla warfare in Vietnam.

But there is need for a long-range program to hammer home this fact, especially now that news dispatches reveal the intention of the Peiping government to continue to develop an atomic bomb. Nuclear weapons in the hands of an irresponsible government can terrorize all the peoples of Asia and result some day in a world holocaust. It is not the mere possession of nuclear weapons which is a threat to mankind — it is the existence of an irresponsible regime which at any moment can misguidedly disregard the risks of nuclear war.

When the United States entered the First World War, President Wilson proclaimed the doctrine that "the world must be made safe for democracy." Today, nearly 50 years later, it is apparent that dictatorships not only still threaten neighboring countries but, with nuclear weapons available, can destroy huge segments of the world.

For several years now, the people of the Soviet Union have been learning something about the dangers of nuclear war. There is reason to believe that the military men in Moscow are not likely to start a nuclear war because it is apparent to them that the retaliatory power of the United States is more than enough to destroy the Soviet Union.

But do the people of Red China know these same facts of life? What steps, if any, are being taken to inform the people of mainland China concerning the dangers that can arise if nuclear weapons are developed for use by the Peiping government? The only way the world can be made safe for democracy today is for peoples to be able to control the acts of their own governments.

The time is opportune now for President Johnson to address the Chinese people and to set forth the disinterested purpose of the United States and its citizens in helping other nations throughout the world. The American people would be glad to help the people of Red China, just as economic aid and military assistance in a crisis have been extended to other peoples on all continents.

There is a historic friendship between the people of this country and the Chinese. Unfortunately, China today is divided. But there will be no chance of reunification until the people of the mainland come to realize that any government set up in Peiping in the future must be responsive to the wishes of all its people and mindful of their safety in a nuclear world.

The United States is in a position to render economic help to the Chinese people. There are on Formosa many able leaders who could play a constructive part in the rebuilding of the Chinese Republic. A population now estimated at more than 700 million is not as readily governed as is that of Formosa, but the government in the latter country

CONGRESS — Congress has begun to take a look at itself. It is conducting hearings on how it may reorganize itself to become a more efficient national legislative body.

To many, it may appear that the effort is poorly timed. On the whole, Congress is performing remarkably well and the outlook is for more of the same for the balance of this season, at least.

The House appears to be handling legislation expeditiously as well as wisely and in response to the desires of the majority of the voting public. The Senate is also moving along well and has even shown evidences of a willingness to do something about curtailing filibusters that have slowed down its work at critical times in recent years.

Yet, no one will argue that Congress cannot improve its own procedures and practices. In fact, it has opened for itself, an opportunity to call public attention to the kind of legislative machinery this country ought to have in the years of challenge that lie ahead.

One proposal from Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Ill., undoubtedly will receive detailed examination — that committee chairmen be elected by secret ballot of the majority members, that such chairmen step aside at age 70, and that Senate filibusters be terminated after 15 days of debate.

It is also obvious that Congress needs better control over the appropriation and spending of money by the government. The hearing undoubtedly will delve deeply into this matter of better fiscal control.

One thing is plain. As the work of government grows greater and more complex, Congress must be overhauled to meet the greater demands thrust on it.

Modern Hypertension Treatment Gets Results

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The modern treatment of hypertension is paying dividends. The new drugs have been used long enough to conclude that mortality and complications have been lowered significantly. These agents play a major role, but the individual must cooperate by maintaining a normal weight and cholesterol level. In addition, he should stop smoking and restrict his salt intake. Drug therapy is tailored to the needs of the individual.

The mildest of these include the rauwolfia preparations, of which reserpine is used most often. Common side effects are nasal congestion, drowsiness, and hypotension. Oral diuretics are mild and frequently used with reserpine or another tranquilizer. Diuretics encourage the kidneys to eliminate more sodium chloride and potassium.

A major side effect occurs when the body loses too much potassium and the individual develops muscular weakness. This can be avoided by drinking orange juice or eating a banana, which has a high potassium content. The deficit also can be corrected with unsalted nuts, most fresh or frozen vegetables, and fresh, frozen, canned, or dried fruits. Potassium chloride can be substituted for salt and a 20 per cent solution is available for teaspoon dosage.

Hydralazine (Apresoline), a mild drug also is valuable in lowering tension. Side reactions include rapid heart action, headache, and indigestion. Methyldopa (Aldomet) and pargyline hydrochloride (Eutonyl) are drugs of intermittent potency. The more powerful drugs have a tendency to cause blood pressure to fall too low when the individual stands. The latter also raises pressure when the user is taking the medication and eats cheese.

Guafenesin (Ismelin) and the ganglionic blocking agents are the most potent antihypertensives. These are used when others fail. All are prescription products.

Try And Stop Me

A traveling opera troupe, performing "Faust" for a rustic audience, came a cropper when the singer essaying the lead (he weighed about 280 pounds) got stuck in a trapdoor supposedly leading to the nether regions. The music stopped while he tried desperately to wriggle free. Suddenly from the gallery came the joyous cry, "Thank God! Hell is full!"

J. C. Furnas, in his new book, "The Life and Times of the Late Demon Rum," reveals that the kindly, genteel Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was sold to a fare-thee-well years ago to sober citizens to "revive drooping spirits and plant on pale cheeks the fresh roses of life's spring" had in fact "two thirds of the kick of a Manhattan cocktail" — unsuspected but duly appreciated by its abstemious consumers.

OVERHEARD:
Ski instructor to timid beginner: "The first thing you should remember is that the human body contains only 200 bones."

TV star to new writer: "My wife is not the kind of woman who knows everything. If she did, she'd get a divorce."

Housewife on phone to TV repairman: "You needn't rush over after all. My husband and I had put on each other's spectacles by mistake."

Genuine Charity And Phony Politics Side By Side In Los Angeles Area

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—En route across the U. S. A. — Lots of things are happening in the U. S. A. today that Washington doesn't know much about — interesting things, wholesome things, some things below-the-belt. Here are some I observed during a quick trip across the continent.

CITY OF HOPE — In Los Angeles is one of the unique hospitals of the world. Founded in 1913 by two doctors, Louis Pertsin and Leon Shulberg, to help tubercular patients, it has expanded into a small medical city outside L. A. where its doctors work on all the major mysterious diseases, ranging from heart to cancer.

The City of Hope is unique in many respects. It never turns a needy patient down. It receives no funds from Community Chest drives. Ninety per cent of its patients are non-Jewish, though 90 per cent of its money is donated by Jews.

I met with the Sportsmen's Club, a group of Angelenos whose name is not derived from the fact that they go in for deep sea fishing or surfboard riding, but from their making a sport of charity contributions. Their sporting support of the City of Hope has helped make it what it is.

PHONY POLITICS — Local elections can be just as bitter, almost as important, as nationwide battles. Running for the city council from the 13th district of giant, sprawling Los Angeles is right wing Paul H. Lampport, who claims not only to have been a major in the U. S. Army but to have earned a Silver Star for combat action.

When I checked with the Defense Department, however, I found that "Major" Lampport had never risen above the rank of first lieutenant and that, instead of a Silver Star for combat, he got the routine silver star which automatically comes when any soldier participates in five campaigns. This kind of a silver star merely replaces five bronze stars because a campaign ribbon gets too crowded. It does not mean gallantry in action.

"Major" Lampport was certainly not very gallant in claiming a military career which he did not earn. Specifically what he claimed was "one silver star, combat mission, 1943, Southern France." The Defense Department denies any star received in combat.

Neither was Lampport gallant in his claims to higher education. He cites his educational background as University of Southern California, California College of Law and the "Cite Universitaire." A check on these institutions revealed that there was no record of his attending the University of Southern California, that the California College of Law had never heard of him, and that "Cite Universitaire" is not a college at all but a housing facility for students in Paris.

That's the way politics sometimes operates in Southern California.

INDEPENDENT TELEPHONE COMPANIES — In Kansas City I met executives of the Independent Telephone Companies of Kansas and Missouri. There are 345,000 independent telephones in Missouri; 181,500 in Kansas, operated by about 400 different companies independent of the Bell system.

When you place a call from Washington to a Midwest city, the chances are the final delivery of the call will be made by a company totally independent of Bell, which handles the long lines.

This is an amazing feat of inter-company telephone cooperation. It's an amazing fact also that there are 2,535 telephone companies in the United States, all working completely independent of, yet in cooperation with, the biggest telephone company in the world, namely American Tel & Tel and its subsidiary, Bell.

The inside fact is that Bell is anxious to keep a certain amount of independent telephone competition to ward off anti-monopoly action by the Justice Department, therefore it handles calls to and from the independents without a moment's delay, and gives them a percentage of the revenue.

I have used the telephone all over the world from Russia to Bolivia to Australia, all of which operate telephone monopolies.

No country in the world operates such an efficient telephone system as the U.S.A. and the independent companies make up part of that system.

LOVE VERSUS HATE — Down in the Dominican Republic where passions flare and blood flows, one agency never fired upon by either side is: CARE. When a CARE truck trundles along the streets of Santo Domingo, both sides cease firing, the rebels take down their barricades, and the CARE driver moves in with his load — 25,000 two-inch buns baked daily for the children of the beleaguered city.

Without CARE, many of these children would starve.

I have watched CARE operate all over the world, from Pakistan to Yugoslavia to Colombia. It's a miracle of American efficiency and generosity, though experiencing a tough struggle today with diminishing funds and increasing problems. I got back to Washington just in time for CARE's four-day conference to consider the problem of increasing hunger pangs and decreasing funds. It's a distressing, difficult problem.

ATHENS

A few jottings at the airport while waiting for an airplane to take me over Homer's wine-dark sea back to England set in Shakespeare's silver sea. What are we to make of this wine-dark sea business? Three thousand years ago, was maybe the sea burgundy colored? Or perhaps the wine green? Or blue?

Note on Greek architecture after inspecting the Parthenon, the temple of Athena, and the temple of Poseidon: the ancient Greeks never figured out how to make a roof. I know all that stuff about the roofs disappearing under the Turkish occupation. Is this plausible? Would the Turks go around stealing roofs off temples? Why just steal roofs? Why not steal the pediments or the columns or the floor?

No, it won't wash. I think the Greeks just never figured out how to do the thing. The scene, as I see it: two Greeks have put up 13 columns on each side, eight in the front and back.

FIRST GREEK: How do we keep the rain out?

SECOND GREEK: Look, haven't we done enough? We invented democracy, didn't we? Aristophanes invented pornography, didn't he? Pornography and democracy are enough for a little country like this to pass onto posterity. Let the Romans invent how to keep out the rain.

Religious note: the patron saint of Corfu is St. Spyridon, whose tiny mummified foot is kissed by Corfusians on saint's days. But St. Spyridon is not a local boy. He was brought in, after he died, from Cyprus. Why does Corfu have to import its patron saint?

The island has been occupied by Greeks, Turks, French, British, and Venetians. Not a saint among them. Why? Something to do with the climate, I suppose. Too balmy, too much sunshine, too much greenery. Not conducive to contemplation. Or saint-hood. Too many other things to do here. Cyprus rockier, drier, hotter. Better sainthood country. Ulisses slept in Corfu (as where didn't he sleep?). And also Jason have roaches exterminated from my home before my baby is born next month. Will this harm the baby or me?

REPLY
This depends upon the insecticide used and whether the job is done by an amateur or a professional. Why not have the exterminator come to your house while you are at the hospital having the baby?

HAY FEVER
R. P. writes: Is hay fever a serious condition?

REPLY
As a rule it is more annoying than serious. But some sufferers develop asthma. This is the chief reason why everything possible must be done to control symptoms. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hay fever.

HEAT STROKE
P. R. writes: What is the best thing to do in severe sunstroke?

REPLY
Get the patient to a hospital, for emergency care is needed. Severe heat stroke is dangerous and the victim may have lasting complications if he survives. Milder attacks respond to cooling with ice packs or baths. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on the effects of sunlight.

TOMORROW: Infected Birds.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

and Medea on the way back from that Golden Fleece business, and Antony and Cleopatra, Pompey, Julius Caesar, Kaiser Wilhelm (whose favorite summer palace is now the gambling casino), Prince Philip was born here. Shakespeare had this place in mind when he wrote "The Tempest." Still, Corfu has no Hilton hotel. Why?

Memorandum to Conrad Hilton: suggest a Ulisses-Hilton. A natural. We'll have the Antony and Cleopatra honeymoon suite. The Pompey Room for fancy dress balls. Or for snacks the Jason Room where they have delicious Octavian-sized Golden Fleeceburgers. Dance in the Ariel Roof Garden or after midnight in the Caliban Cave. Swim in the Rubicon, the Caesar-sized swimming pool. I tell you it can't miss, Conrad.

Just one more local folk dance I somehow forgot to put in the folk dance column. This dance tells the story of the shepherd who comes down from the hills. "He's very, very sorrowful. He has entered the home of his beloved and he says, 'I think I smell octopus and rice.' This is the meal young couples have on the eve of their engagement. The shepherd thinks his beloved loves another. However... I'm not going to tell you the ending. It would spoil the story.

Finally, a true story about an American wayfarer in these parts told with great glee by one of the residents. The Corfusian was giving the driver of a car a hand changing a tire. An American tourist in the back seat said to the Corfusian, "Would you mind asking the driver where he's taking me?" The Corfusian said, "Well, where are you supposed to be going?" Said the American, "I think I'm supposed to be sight-seeing."

So the Corfusian asked the driver where he was taking the American tourist. "I haven't decided yet," said the driver.

Still, it's a lovely, balmy, barny island, even if they have to import their saints, and I wouldn't have missed the place.

You're Telling Me!

By William Ritt

The U.S., for the first time since 1930, will begin production of silver dollars—45 million of 'em in the first batch. That's good news—and here's hoping some of those cartwheels start rolling your way.

Humming bird wings beat 60 times a second — nature item. That's a lot of energy packed into so small an object!

The world's first iron warships, according to an historian, were owned by Mexico back in 1840. Good grief!—don't tell us that the Battle of the Merrimac and the Monitor was just another myth!

Sometimes it's little things that bring us greatest joy—like a tiny golf ball popping into a small cup in just one stroke.

More than 15 million corn-cob pipes are produced annually in the U. S.—Factographs. Wal, I swan!

On reading that Oberlin College in Ohio will permit consumption of 3.2 beer in dormitories and in a bathkeller, now under construction, F. E. F. wonders out loud if this could mean really "higher" education.

Crocodiles sleep with their eyes open—nature item. What in the world can THEY be afraid of?

That sudden impact of the Soviet space rocket Lunik 5 on the Moon, five minutes ahead of schedule, says F. E. F., must have taught the Russians that lunar landing is not the soft touch they thought it was.

Class Honors Cousins

The senior class of Keyser High School has elected cousins to reign as king and queen at their annual Class Night program to be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the school auditorium. Shown here are Norman Cannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cannon of Keyser, who will be crowned king, and his cousin, Regina Cannon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cannon of Burlington, who will be crowned queen.

Kindergarten Gets Training On Phone Use

Children Also Take First Train Ride

KEYSER, W. Va.—Mrs. Sandra Hillberg of the C&P Telephone Co. spoke to the students of Keyser Kindergarten, demonstrated proper use of the telephone and explained telephone etiquette to the students.

Mrs. Hillberg not only explained the correct way to answer the telephone, but also how to say good-bye. She stressed that the telephone is not a play thing and that polite manners are especially important on a party line. What to do in case of a busy signal or wrong number was also explained. Mrs. Hillberg showed the children how to call the operator in case of emergency.

Using the tele-trainer, a switch-board-like instrument with two telephones, the students could actually talk to each other and practice what they had learned.

Another highlight for students of Keyser Kindergarten was a train trip taken earlier this month.

The children, accompanied by teachers and chaperones, left the B&O station here for a brief, but exciting ride to Piedmont. Each child waited in line to present his fare at the ticket window and receive a ticket. For many, this was the first train ride.

The group was met at Piedmont by more mothers who drove the youngsters back to Keyser.

A picnic is planned for the children today at the swimming pool park starting at 12:30 p. m. In case of inclement weather, it will be held tomorrow.

Question I have no family to look after my funeral arrangements. Is it possible to have your Funeral Home made beneficiary of my life insurance?

Answer Most insurance companies require the beneficiary of an insurance contract to have an actual insurable interest in the life of the insured. This precaution is taken to protect the insured from people who might have no genuine interest in his welfare.

Even though we may have an insurable interest in your life because we are obligated to do certain things for you after death we feel there is a greater margin of safety for you if you have this paid to us through a bank trustee. Bank trustees have a permanent existence, whereas, we or other individuals may pre-decease you, move away, become incompetent or otherwise fail to act in your behalf.

You may also assign this insurance policy to us even though a beneficiary is named. We would then have a prior claim on it. If you will come in we can explain in detail.

Token of Love

Comforting advice and genuine assistance can mean so much when a loved one goes away. Over a period of years we have tried to "go that extra mile" with all who call us in their hour of sorrow. We pledge not only the use of our Chapel equipment and other mortuary refinements, but all personal help and interest of a neighbor.

Clay Defends Heavy Crown At Lewiston

High School Hockey Rink, Fight Site, Seats Only 4,900

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Cassius Clay will defend his world heavyweight boxing title against Sonny Liston Tuesday night in a controversial rematch that was chased out of Boston and finally found a haven in a high school hockey rink in this textile city.

Facts, Figures On Title Fight

LEWISTON, Me. (UPI) — Facts and Figures on the Clay-Liston fight:

Principals — Cassius Clay, Louisville, Ky., vs. Sonny Liston, Denver, Colo.

Title at stake—Clay's World Heavyweight Championship.

Place—Central Maine Youth Center, Lewiston.

Time—10:30 p.m. EDT.

Distance—15 rounds.

Odds—Liston favored at 13-10.

Promoter — Inter-Continental Promotions, Inc.

Clay's Purse—30 per cent of all net receipts, including closed circuit TV, movies, radio, gate, etc.

Liston's Purse — Same as Clay's.

Television — No home TV. Closed circuit television to 258 locations. Bout will also be televised live to Britain via Early Bird Satellite.

Radio—Broadcast live to upwards of 600 stations by Mutual Broadcasting System.

Officials — A non-voting referee and three voting judges to be named at fight time.

Scoring—The 10-point "must" system; Winner of round gets 10 points, loser 9 or fewer; even rounds, 10-10.

Weight-in—12-30 p.m., EDT, Tuesday at the Youth Center.

Only 4,900 seats are available in the Central Maine Youth Center and there has been no rush for the $100 top tickets. However, the promoter expects total receipts to top $5 million from other sources, mainly closed circuit television.

Fight Time 10:30 EDT

Fight time for this 15-round match is 9:30 p.m. (EST), which means that the Early Bird satellite will be beaming the action into England at 3:30 Wednesday morning.

Despite the weird event at Miami Beach Feb. 25, 1964, when Clay won the title when Liston quit in his corner claiming an injury to his left shoulder, there appears to be a groundswell of interest in the rematch. The closed circuit people have more than a million seats in 258 locations and expect to sell 630,000 seats. If receipts live up to estimates, the fighters will get about $680,000 each.

Fight Odds Shorten

Liston, a 7-1 favorite in the first fight, has been the choice in the rematch but the odds have reportedly shortened from 9-5 to 13-10.

The gabby Clay, known as "Nifty Mouth," the Louisville Lip and any number of other nicknames, appeared supremely confident. He arrived at his headquarters in neighboring Auburn Sunday afternoon and dashed into a round of press conferences and autograph signing parties. He reminded all that he is to be called by his Black Muslim name, Muhammad Ali.

Police have been keeping an eye on Clay to guard him against any possibility of trouble from the Black nationalist supporters of the slain Malcolm X. The avengers had threatened Clay at the time of the assassination. However, the police appeared to have decided to leave Cassius on his own Monday when he jogged in his final workout. Police cars which had been prominent before were no longer in evidence.

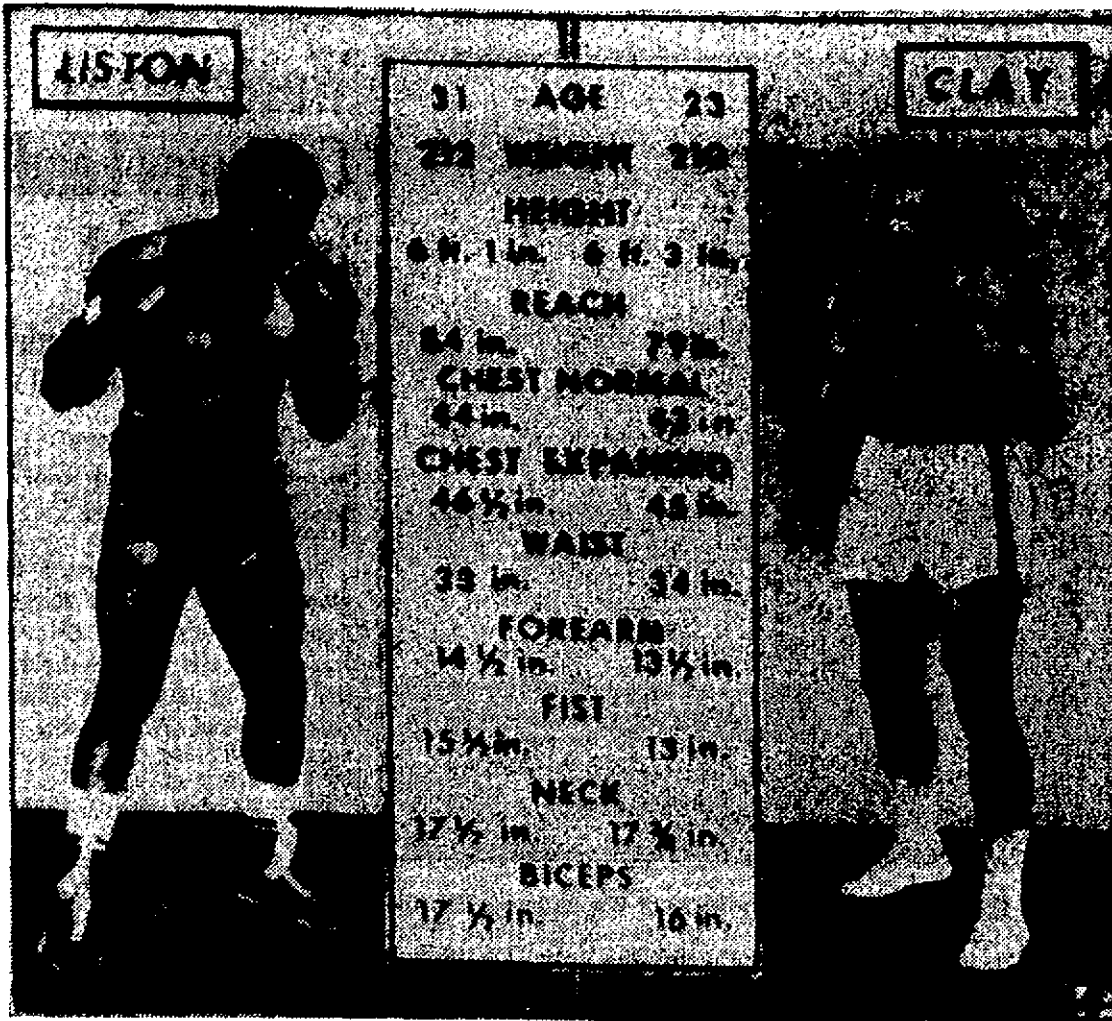

Clay normally calls the round but he hasn't picked any this time. When they were training for the original Nov. 16 date in Boston, postponed when Clay suffered a hernia attack, the champion said it would end in nine.

Clay Wins 20 Fights

Clay, only 23, has not been beaten in his 20 pro fights. Liston claims he is 31 but many think he is much older, perhaps 40. Sonny, an ominous man with a police record, has a 35-2 record and was stopped only once—by Clay, when he didn't come out for the seventh round in Miami Beach.

Peter Mailnes Dies

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Peter Mailnes, former Tulane football tackle and assistant football coach, died Sunday at the age of 71.

TALE OF THE TAPE FOR TITLE FIGHT—Here is how Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston stack up in the vital statistics department for their heavyweight championship fight tonight at Lewiston, Maine. Liston is a 13-10 favorite. In their first meeting, Feb. 25, 1964, Liston quit, claiming an injury to his left shoulder, and Clay won the title.

Pupil Dies, 28 Hurt As Bus Upsets

Two Mothers In Somerset Hospital Listed 'Critical'

SOMERSET, Pa. (UPI)—An 11-year-old girl was killed and 28 persons injured Monday when a school bus returning from a field trip overturned at the Donegal Interchange of the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

The bus, with 38 aboard, fell onto the sharp edge of a truck scale and its top and sides were ripped open.

Books and field trip souvenirs littered the blood-spattered interior of the bus.

Dead was Virginia Herr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Herr of Donegal, Pa.

"Everything was upside down," teacher Jack Bysick said in a shaky voice. "If I had been five feet to the rear, I would have been a goner. The bus wasn't going fast but the accident happened fast."

Jean Funk, 18, of Stahlstown, Pa., who had acted as a chaperon for the pupils, said "There were no brakes. I knew it was going to crash. He (bus driver) tried to avoid the bus in front of us."

Miss Funk was listed in serious condition at Mount Pleasant Hospital as were one other chaperon and eight students.

One child, Nancy Dix, 11, of Donegal, suffered severe head injuries and shock. She kept calling for the dead Virginia Herr, who had been seated beside her when the bus crashed.

Two mothers, who had accompanied their children on the trip to Pittsburgh's Highland Park Zoo, were listed in very critical condition at Somerset Community Hospital.

State police set the total number of injured at 28. Some of the young victims were picked up by passing motorists and taken to nearby doctors' offices.

Police said the children were all pupils at the Donegal Township Elementary School.

The bus driver, identified as Dean Mowry, of Indianhead, Pa., told police his brakes failed as he went into a sharp curve on the cloverleaf exit of the interchange, which is 10 miles north of here and about 40 miles southeast of Pittsburgh.

Mowry said he pulled on the emergency brake but the bus skidded and when he swerved to avoid a bus in front of him, his vehicle overturned against the scale.

State police said, "We're bringing in experts to go over every piece of that bus and find out why this thing happened."

Jury Affirms Commissioner On Appeal

An Allegany County Circuit Court jury took only about 10 minutes yesterday to decide that Mrs. Hazel A. Reeves of Westernport was wholly dependent upon her husband who died last June of burns sustained while working for the Reeves Motor Company Inc.

Bernard V. McGreevy was foreman of the jury which affirmed the decision of Commissioner Francis J. Valle of the Workmen's Compensation Commission.

Harry Vance Reeves Jr., 44, was burned about 4 p. m. last June 11 while taking a motor from the car. The car caught fire and while he was attempting to extinguish the flames, the gasoline tank blew up and ignited his clothing. The badly burned man died four days later in Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser.

Commissioner Valle had decided earlier that Mrs. Reeves was wholly dependent upon her husband, although evidence was presented that Mrs. Reeves earned $1,275.80 last year working in the cafeteria at the Westernport Elementary School.

The decision was appealed by the Reeves Motor Company Inc., the employer, and State Accident Fund, the insurer. Associate Judge Harold E. Naughton presided at the trial. William H. Geppert was attorney for the claimant and Leslie J. Clark was attorney for the employer and insurer.

The sole question before the Run At Large?

Jury was whether Mrs. Reeves was wholly or partially dependent upon her husband. The answer, after deliberation, was that she was wholly dependent. The answer, after deliberation, was that she was wholly dependent. The answer, after deliberation, was that she was wholly dependent.

Council Asks Guidelines On Apportionment

BALTIMORE (AP)—A legislative committee posed four basic questions to the Maryland attorney general Monday for guidelines in drafting a legislative reapportionment plan.

Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan was asked to answer them prior to the Legislative Council's next meeting June 1. The council is attempting to work out a bill which can be presented to a special session of the legislature in October.

The questions, drafted by a subcommittee headed by Del. James R. Miller, R-Montgomery, sought primarily to determine what size Senate will be necessary to meet the Supreme Court one-man, one-vote rule for representation and whether metropolitan counties should be divided into districts for the seats they would gain.

Also at issue is whether Baltimore City can be treated differently than metropolitan counties. At present there is one senator for each Maryland county, regardless of its population, and one for each of Baltimore City's six legislative districts.

Finan expressed an oral opinion to the council last week that if the Senate is expanded on present plans to retain one seat for each county, it might be necessary to have 175 or more members to assure enough for populous areas.

These were the written questions presented to him Monday: "1. If in reapportionment the Senate of Maryland, one Senator is given to each county and one to Baltimore City, apportioning the remainder on the formula of equal proportions, what is the minimum total number of senators necessary? This question assumes a House of Delegates with 142 members, giving one delegate to each county and one to Baltimore City, with the remainder apportioned on the formula of equal proportions."

"2. Assuming that the House of Delegates is divided into legislative districts for the larger counties and Baltimore City, is it constitutionally possible for the larger counties and Baltimore City to have a basic assignment of senators to each district with the remainder, if any, elected at large?"

"3. Assuming that the House of Delegates is divided into legislative districts for the larger counties and Baltimore City, is it constitutionally possible for the larger counties and Baltimore City to have a basic assignment of senators to each district with the remainder, if any, elected at large?"

"4. Must the method of determining whether senators and/or delegates run at large in districts or a combination of both be uniform among all the counties and Baltimore City? May the method of making this determination be established by the General Assembly on a local option basis?"

Polygraph Is Being Used In Murder Case

State's Attorney Donald W. Mason said last night that a State Police polygraph machine (lie detector) has been brought to Cumberland for use in the investigation of the murder of Mrs. Jean Burkett Welch.

Mr. Mason said Captain W. Elwood O'Hara of the State Police had provided the machine and an experienced operator at the request of Cumberland Police Chief B. F. Gaffney, County Investigator William F. Baker and Mr. Mason.

Mr. Mason said several persons already have voluntarily submitted to tests on the machine and several other persons will be given tests.

Authorities investigating the case said they were very grateful to Capt. O'Hara and the State Police for their cooperation and assistance.

They said the polygraph being in the Cumberland area will help facilitate the investigation, since it had been necessary for Cpl. Milton G. Hart, criminal investigator for the State Police at LaVale, and Deputy Sheriff Lewis E. Tyree to take several persons to the State Police barracks at Frederick for tests on the machine.

Mr. Mason said his office is still receiving information in the case and all leads are being checked and rechecked. Several hundred persons already have been questioned in the case. He added that the attitude of all the officers in the case is good and they are continuing their intensive investigation.

Yesterday afternoon marked one week since Mrs. Welch was found beaten to death in her first-floor apartment at 1000 East Oldtown Road.

Self-Help Training Scheduled

Some 70 holders of Red Cross standard first aid certificates are expected to attend the first of two medical self-help training sessions tomorrow at West Side School from 7 until 9 p. m.

The second session will be held June 2 at the same time and place.

The classes are being held by Allegany County Health Department with the cooperation of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, Allegany-Garrett Counties Pharmaceutical Society, District Nurses' Association and the local Medical and Chiropractic Society.

The program sponsored by the Department of Health Education and Welfare and Department of Defense, Office of Civil Defense, is aimed at certifying at least one member of each family with the basic knowledge of family survival in the case of a nuclear attack or similar disaster.

The two sessions follow the completion of a Red Cross standard first aid course. They include instruction on radioactive fallout and shelter and healthful living in emergencies, basic hygiene and sanitation and nursing care.

Tomorrow's classes will be on radioactive fallout and shelter and will be taught by Robert Martin and other members of the Pharmaceutical Society.

Next week the classes will include nursing care of the sick and injured, infant and child care and emergency childbirth.

At the conclusion of the two sessions, those completing the course will be given certificates of medical self-help proficiency.

Fair Way To Distribute Tax Bite Sought By Unit

Property Tax Elimination Urged

BALTIMORE (AP) — Those with the lowest incomes pay proportionately twice as much in Maryland taxes as those with the highest incomes and "the property tax is, by far, the greatest offender."

A special legislative committee started studying what to do about the situation on Monday night.

The six senators and six delegates tackled a report titled "Guide Lines for Improving Maryland's Fiscal Structure." They were drafted by a special study commission named to review the relationship of state and county financing.

The commission estimated that the state will need $20 million more and the local governments $50 million additional for the next fiscal year.

The legislators first took up recommendations that the state discontinue taxing property and that both it and the counties eliminate taxes on personal property which are paid almost entirely by business.

Cites Property Tax

In subsequent meetings, they will look at recommendations for extensive broadening of the sales tax with all returns shifting from the state to local governments, a graduated income tax to be kept entirely by the state and uniformity of business taxes.

The study commission pointed its finger at the property tax as causing the state's overall structure to be regressive—the percentage paid decreases as income increases.

Persons whose income is under $2,000 a year pay 6.6 percent of it for property taxes. The proportion of taxes paid by those with incomes over $10,000 is only 1.4 percent.

The cure, according to the commission, would be to reduce the role of the property tax in government financing and graduate the tax on income.

The property tax produces more than 90 percent of local funds while only about 4 percent of the state total. While the state tax of 18 cents per $100 assessed value by itself is nominal the commission said it is not when imposed in conjunction with local taxes.

'Makes No Sense'

If the state stopped taxing property, it would mean a loss of only about $22 million a year which could be applied locally.

The personal property taxes are imposed on public utility and railroad operating property, public utility shares, manufacturing stock and equipment, and shares of financial corporations.

The study commission described them as confusing and inequitable. The two basic faults are "the wide use of exemptions and the nearly impossible task of assessing such property."

The counties as a whole are taxing personal property at 40 percent less than the state base.

"The taxation of personal property makes no sense," concluded the commission, "and it should be eliminated."

The counties and Baltimore City now collect about $37 million a year from the personal property taxes.

Lonaconing Serviceman Is Drowned

Joel N. Morris, 20, Was In California

A Lonaconing sailor, who would have been 21 on Monday, drowned Sunday while swimming with two other sailors off the California coast near San Diego.

Dead is Joel Neil Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Basil B. Morris, 125 Jackson Street, Lonaconing. He had been in the Navy about three years having enlisted upon graduation from Valley High School.

His parents were informed early yesterday morning by Navy officials that the young sailor had drowned while swimming along Mission Beach.

The three sailors were reported to have been caught by a rip tide in the ocean. The two companions were able to get to shore. One of the companions was reported to have attempted to save Morris but was unable to hold onto him until help arrived and barely managed to get back to shore himself.

The Coast Guard made a search of the immediate area until dark on Sunday but were unable to find the victim's body. His father said last night that the victim knew how to swim, having learned in the Navy.

Young Morris who was stationed aboard the USS Parsons, a destroyer, only recently had returned to California from six months duty in the Pacific.

Besides his mother and father, the victim is survived by three brothers, Harold Morris, Avilton, Robert W. Morris, with the Air Force in Florida, Keith Morris, Frostburg, two sisters, Mrs. Gladys Llewellyn, Walkersville and Mary Lynne Morris, at home.

Also surviving are the victim's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ida Morris, who resides with his parents, and his maternal grandfather, C. N. Livingston, Frostburg.

Gas Merger Savings Are Questioned

Plan Opposed By PSC Staffer

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A Columbia Gas System (CGS) spokesman told the Public Service Commission Monday the utility could save $1 million a year by merging its three gas distribution companies in West Virginia. But a PSC staff member called the figure "speculation" not worthy of consideration.

United Fuel Gas Co. president James S. Phillips was the chief rebuttal witness for CGS on its plan to merge UFG with Manufacturers Light and Heat Co. and Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Co.

Phillips said net savings of $1 million are indicated when the retail business of the three CGS subsidiaries are merged. He said this includes savings outlined at earlier hearings plus the effect of a new form of rates UFG and other CGS companies plan for wholesale rates.

Opposes Merger

But Robert L. Hart, chief counsel for the PSC staff which is opposing the merger, told the commission in regard to the proposed saving:

"He (Phillips) presented no figures. We can't accept his testimony as gospel. I don't see how we can give it any consideration at all."

Hart said certain of the proposed savings for West Virginia customers were based on winter service tariffs that have not yet been submitted to the Federal Power Commission. He asked that the proposal be disregarded as "speculative" and stricken from the record.

The PSC did not act immediately on the motion.

Monday's hearing was the third on the merger proposal. CGS presented its case at the initial hearing, while the PSC staff offered rebuttal testimony in the second round. Company attorneys cross-examined PSC staff members Monday and offered rebuttal testimony of their own.

The case was submitted following completion of Monday's testimony, although CGS attorneys were given 35 days to file final briefs after they receive the transcript, and the PSC staff would then have 10 days to file reply briefs.

Cost Is Disputed

One of the main points in contention is use of gas stored in underground pools. CGS proposed to leave these under control of United Fuel's transmission and wholesale operations when its retail business becomes part of the merged firm. PSC staff members said this would increase the cost of gas to the merged operation, but this was denied by UFG spokesmen.

UFG vice president C. H. Workman also denied a staff contention that savings would not be as much as CGS claimed. He said staff figures were based on cost allocations different from those approved by the PSC itself in the past.

In making such a claim, Workman said, the commission staff "is saying, in effect, that the method heretofore used and approved by this commission was wrong."
